Hemo bioscience Awarded Contract Renewal with AABB to Provide Proficiency Test Products

Research Triangle Park, NC (July 6, 2016) – Hemo bioscience (HBS) is pleased to announce a 3-year contract renewal with AABB, formerly known as the American Association of Blood Banks.

AABB currently accredits nearly 60 Immunohematology Reference Laboratories (IRL) in the United States and internationally. These IRLs perform advanced serology testing and reference laboratory services.

The accreditation program of AABB promotes the highest standards of operation and care in all aspects of transfusion medicine, cellular therapies, and relationship testing. It was granted “deemed status” in May 2008 as an accreditation organization under the CLIA of 1988.

Identified by AABB as a leading manufacturer in the transfusion diagnostics industry, Hemo bioscience has been awarded a 3-year contract renewal with AABB for the manufacture, packaging and dispatch of its prestigious IRL Proficiency Test (PT) products.

About

Founded in 2003, Hemo bioscience, Inc. is a leading innovator in the transfusion diagnostics industry. From idea inception to product distribution we are committed to improving the science in blood banking.
